

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Society will attend the dance at the Country Club of Virginia this evening. There will be a small gallery of spectators to watch the games of tennis in the afternoon and a number of tables have already been reserved for dinner this evening preceding the hop. An orchestra will play from half after 7 o'clock until 11, and the small tables arranged on the terrace of the club will be crowded with people during the evening hours.

In Atlantic City.
Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Smyth, of Mount Vernon, left town yesterday for Atlantic City, where they will spend several weeks. They were accompanied by Mrs. Smyth's sister, Miss Theresa Nurney, of Suffolk, and will later visit New York City before returning to Virginia. Mrs. Smyth expects to go to Hollins College in August for a short visit to Mrs. Frank W. Duke, of Ginter Park, who is spending the summer with relatives there.

Turner-Staples.
An event of much interest to society in Richmond, where the bride has a great many friends and relatives, was the marriage of Miss Caroline Elizabeth Staples, daughter of the late Colonel Abram Staples and Mrs. E. Staples, to Benjamin Harrison Turner, son of the late Benjamin H. Turner and Mrs. M. M. Turner, which took place on Thursday afternoon at half past 4 o'clock in Roanoke. The ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Father Curran, of St. Andrew's, was celebrated in the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Persinger, cousins of the bride, at Raleigh Court. Decorations were in pink roses and ferns, and an improvised altar of palms and lighted tapers was arranged at one end of the drawing-room.

The bride entered with her niece, Mrs. L. B. Rucker, who attended her as dame of honor, and was given in marriage by Mr. Persinger. She wore a smart going away gown of Alice blue cloth, with a hat to match, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and gardenias. Mrs. Rucker wore a white lingerie gown and carried an armful of pink roses. Some of the guests from a distance included Mrs. M. V. Turner, of Richmond; Mrs. Robert Marks, of Norfolk; Mrs. J. H. Spicer and her daughter, Virginia, of New York; Samuel Staples, of Ohio, and others.

Mr. and Mrs. Turner left immediately after the ceremony for a wedding journey that included Niagara Falls, New York and Canada, and on their return will visit Atlantic City, Baltimore and Richmond.

Invitations for the wedding were issued by Mrs. Staples, and the marriage was celebrated at the home of the bride's home, "Woodlawn," but owing to later plans, the ceremony was performed in Roanoke, where both bride and groom have a great many relatives and friends. Mr. Turner has been professor of Latin at the Roanoke High School for the past five years, and both he and Mrs. Turner are prominently related throughout the State.

Over Trip.
Mrs. E. A. Shepherd, of Dumfries, left here July 13 in her automobile for a trip through the mountains of Virginia. Mrs. Shepherd was accompanied by her two daughters, Misses Patricia and Grace Shepherd, and her niece, Miss Louise Gray Shepherd. They are at present at the Rockbridge Alum Springs, where they will spend the remainder of the summer. A number of delightful affairs have been given in honor of the Misses Shepherd during their stay at the Rockbridge Alum.

Interesting Hay Ride.
The Junior Social Club gave a hay ride in an automobile truck Wednesday evening for its members and their guests. The party was conveyed to Lakeside, where an informal dance took place. A number of the present included Miss Hattie Scheldahl, of Harrisburg; Pat, Miss Sara Tohen, of Pittsburgh; Miss Bransky, of Baltimore; Miss Minnie Eichelbaum, of York; Miss Doris Caplan, of Baltimore; Miss Klompas, of all of Baltimore.

VETERAN IN GRAY ADMITS HE ROBBED HIVES IN BATTLE

Half-Century Coincidence Oddly Drawn Out by Gettysburg Reunion Gossip.

Harrisburg, July 18.—There is an echo of the recent Gettysburg battlefield reunion. Among those who attended was George D. Thorn, chief clerk in the State Department, who, at the time of the battle, lived with his parents in the little home at the cemetery, of which his father was superintendent.

Mr. Thorn was at his old home on the third day of the reunion, and was informed that a veteran had been hunting for members of the family that occupied the cemetery house to pay for some onions he had stolen on the night of the big fight. He said he would prefer to meet some of the Confederate soldiers who on that night after the battle upset eight beehives and appropriated the honey that the Thorns family was calculating on using during the coming winter. His remark was published in the "Advertiser."

Today Mr. Thorn received a letter marked Fairfax, Va., which contained a newspaper clipping of the story, and underneath was written:

"The undersigned was one of the party of eight."

This was signed by L. R. Hechens, Company H, Fifth Virginia Cavalry, C. S. A., who now lives at Fairfax, and remembered how he helped to raid the Thorn beehives at the time of the big fight. Mr. Thorn has calculated that, with beehives worth $15 at the time his father's were destroyed by the Confederates, the pay for the eight, with compound interest, would amount at present to about $3,000; but, of course, he has no expectation of being reimbursed.

Houston, Va., July 18.—W. V. Tuck, who was a member of the Halifax Board of Supervisors from Red Bank District, tendered his resignation to Judge W. R. Barkdale, of the Circuit Court. He has received the appointment as postmaster at Virginia, and could not fill the two positions. His resignation was accepted, and Mr. Jordan was immediately appointed to fill the vacancy, and entered upon the discharge of his duties at a special meeting of the board held this week.

Charles A. Lacy, for many years the Republican postmaster at Washington, offered his resignation, to become effective at the pleasure of the Post-Office Department in Washington. His term does not expire for two years, and D. F. Hankins is the only applicant for the position.

PREFERS PRISON TO VACCINATION

John N. Ragsdale, Danville Publisher, Goes Smiling to His Cell.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Danville, Va., July 18.—This morning in the Mayor's Court John N. Ragsdale, publisher of a paper, who, after refusing to obey the compulsory vaccination law last May, during the epidemic of smallpox, was fined by the Mayor and appealed to the Corporation Court, where he lost his case, was remanded to jail. Ragsdale went to his cell smiling, still maintaining that before he would allow the city health officer, or any other physician, to poison his blood "with that nasty cow poison" he "would rot in jail," or, if released, leave the city. He stated he meant to make this a test case.

According to Dr. Hudson, there is a law that allows the city physician to vaccinate all prisoners in jail, whenever, in his opinion, it is necessary, and it is probable that this will be done. On the other hand, the Mayor has instructed the jailer not to put Ragsdale on the chain gang until further notice, pending the next move of Ragsdale's counsel, E. H. Custer, who, it is thought, will take further steps in behalf of his client.

EVIDENCE AGAINST FRIEDMANN 'CURE'

[Special Cable to The Times-Dispatch.]
London, July 18.—The current issue of the Lancet contains an editorial on Dr. F. F. Friedmann's tuberculosis treatment. It refers to a recent meeting of the Berlin Medical Society, at which Dr. Westenhofer, pathologist to the Moabit Hospital, in Berlin, showed specimens derived from a case of tuberculosis which had been treated by Friedmann. The subject of the post-mortem was an American medical man, who had had several hemorrhages in the street, was conveyed to a hospital in a moribund condition, where he was given an intragastric injection of Friedmann's serum. For a time the patient felt comparatively well, but later he died.

The examination showed that at the place of the injection there was marked tuberculosis. "There were tubercle giant cells and bacilli which were shorter and thicker than the human tubercle bacilli," says the Lancet.

"The question is whether the tuberculosis at the place of injection must be regarded as a direct sequel to the injection or only as a symptom of the general tuberculosis."

"Primary tuberculosis of the muscles is extremely rare, and it is significant that tuberculosis should have developed at the spot where an alleged antituberculous remedy had been deposited, especially when we remember that in the guinea pig, where the injection had been performed by Friedmann himself, tuberculosis manifestations had appeared at the point of injection."

"As a result of this case, a motion was brought forward to have Friedmann's cure examined by a special commission of the Berlin Medical Society, but the proposal failed to find support."

Boy Plays With Dynamite.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Winston-Salem, N. C., July 18.—Near Elkville, Wilkes County, John Jones, the eleven-year-old son of Mote Jones, was playing with a stick of dynamite when it exploded, partly blowing off his left arm and right leg. Another son of Mote Jones was near-by when the accident occurred, but was not seriously hurt.

All his life may be said to have been spent amidst fighting. For he was born at Delhi, only a few weeks after the outbreak of the great Indian Mutiny of 1857, and in his infancy had several narrow escapes from sharing the fate of those thousands of English children and women who were massacred during the revolt. As a boy, he ran away to sea, and failed twice for the examination for a commission in the army, and then wandered about the world on tramp steamers, having a rough and bitter experience "when at length he returned to England with only two pence in his pocket, his father persuaded him to try for the army, and this time he managed to pass, went through Sandhurst, and was gazetted to the Leinster Regiment."

After he had been good enough to take year he had the wonderful march of Lord Roberts from Kabul to Candahar, and since then his life has been one long succession of frontier warfare, interrupted by service in Egypt and in the Sudan, in Burma, in West Africa, and in South Africa. He has been thanked by Parliament, has been presented with the freedom of the city of London and with a sword of honor, and has a longer row of medals, each showing a different campaign, than any other field officer of the British army.

There are few men who have a more thorough acquaintance with India, its peculiar military conditions, and its requirements, than Sir James. His experience of the natives is almost uncanny, and his mastery of the various languages and dialects phenomenal. In fact, the natives of every class have the most profound respect for him, while among his countrymen in India he is renowned for his prowess as a shooter of big game. Add to this that he is in splendid health and as hard as nails, differing in this respect from General Sir O'Moore Creagh, an elderly veteran who has been an invalid almost throughout his entire term of office, whose ill health rendered him cranky and irritable, and who was led by his animosity against Kitchener to endeavor to undo everything that the latter had accomplished before him in his marvelous reorganization of the British forces and defenses in India.

Sir John Home-Purves-Hume-Campbell, eighth holder of a baronetcy bestowed by Charles II upon William Purves, his Solicitor-General for Scotland, is a Scotchman, and is advertising for sale his beautiful country seat of Marchmont, in Berwickshire, commanding a magnificent view of the Cheviot Hills, framed in a park of a thousand acres, the entire estate embracing some 16,000 acres, including

SENATE RECEIVES ADDITIONAL TARIFF MEASURE

Legislative character upon all articles comprised in a specified list," which includes many agricultural products.

"For some years," says the report, in referring to this retaliatory provision, "there has been a development of maximum and minimum tariffs abroad, and in not a few instances the Government of the United States has been compelled to see its citizens subjected to harsh and discriminating tariff treatment abroad without being able under the law to afford relief."

The tariff act of 1906 recognized this situation and established a general maximum schedule of duties 25 per cent higher than the general or minimum rates of the law. This maximum schedule has proved exceedingly clumsy, and inadequate, and the situation under it has been less satisfactory than that which previously existed.

No material advantages have been derived from it, but, on the contrary, it has stood in the way of successful commerce with other countries.

Powers of President.
The provision now recommended will be added to the hands of the President powers which, though extensive in their sphere, are sufficiently circumscribed to permit of their being exerted within the limits assigned them without disturbing the general fiscal system of the United States. Wise use of the retaliatory power will, it is reasonably to be expected, bring about equitable arrangements with those countries which do now afford us fair treatment, and it is probable that the weapon thus provided will be so available and effective as to render its use an entirely unnecessary under any ordinary conditions."

Of another important feature added by the Senate committee, a tax of one-tenth of 1 per cent a pound on imports of the United States, changes for future delivery, the report says:

"The committee believes the subject matter to be one fit for the imposition of a proper tax, not only because of its added inducement to the producer, but because it will result in the collection of a considerable sum of revenue from the United States, which, in its usual operation, produces abnormal profits from a business that is not susceptible of just taxation in any other way."

The committee is advised that since 1907 no official record of the extent of the dealings on the cotton exchanges in contracts for future delivery is accessible to the public, but reliable estimates of the one class of contracts
